EXT. A CLIFF'S EDGE - DAY

A man in turn-of-the-century clothing stands at the edge of a cliff holding an early prototype of an airplane. he looks nervous as he looks over the edge.

ORVILLE

Are you sure this is a good idea
Wilbur?

Reveal Wilbur kicking back in a lawn chair, reading a magazine.

WILBUR

(Still looking at his magazine)
Stop being a baby Orville. You're going to be fine.

ORVILLE

Shouldn't we test it first?

Wilbur closes his magazine and looks at Orville for a moment. He then begins to laugh hysterically.

CUT TO:

Ext. A FUNERAL - DAY

The laughter is replaced by crying as we see a tombstone that says, "Here lies Orville Wright." We see an elderly lady crying on Orville's shoulder and Orville has a dumb look on his face.
